There is no doubt that the decision of Judge green was a great surprise to the District At-It appeared to knock the District Atwree out for a time, but he is determined now

I do not consider from what I have seen of the decision, that Judge Brown holds the indictsent invalid. He does hold, however, that a United States grand jury indictment carried to nother district is only an ex partelaffidavit and not sufficient in itself to warrant the removal d a prisoner, and that the Government must effect carry its witnesses to where the prisoners se and put in evidence there just as if no indictent had been secured. That appears to be the of the Judge's decision. His statement is that while the indictment may be good as a pleadig it is not good as evidence, any further than

m ex parte affidavit would be. by the same Judge Brown in the celeand by the same Judge Brown in the cele-ic A. Dana libel case, when he refused to e Mr. Dana, editor of THE SUN, from New to answer an indictment in the District of bia, except that it would seem he has gone further in this case. In the Dana case eared that the alleged libel was really pub-in New York. The Judge took judicial of that fact, while in this case the indict-charged that the offense was committed med that the evidence did not show evenment had been defrauded of any-that there was no proof in the indictas inc and that there was no proof in the indictent that a fraud had been committed, or that consultary had been entered into. It could just as well held that men might conspire to Ine flames ignited the insulation of the cable in which were the telephone wires and the blaze ran up through the shaft for the entire distance of twelve stories, emitting a dense smoke. The tenants ran for the elevators and stairways, but by the time everybody had reached the basement the blaze was out. About $2,000 damses was done in before the United States District Judge and or a warrant of removal. That its what the rument did But Judge Brown has gone bethe finding of the Commissioner and says ust proceed as if we had no indictment. It is evident that as soon as he sees the full on of Judge Brown the District Attorney make a new move in the conspiracy cases late, said Mr. Erwin, "that we have evihere which establishes beyond doubt the of the parties indicted. I think that an ment found here ought to stand. We shall the case in a judicial way and have no doubt that of the parties indicted.

Inited States District Attorney Henry L. Bur "Judge Brown's decision itself is not an actual desharge of the prisoners from custody. A femal order of the Court is necessary, after which bey will be taken before the United States Commissioner, who in view of the decision can do suting else than discharge them. In the proceedings before the Commissioner we followed the penral custom in such cases. I contended that it was necessary at the examination to establish with the discharge them. is we necessary at the examination to establish all the identity of the accused and then the instancin tiself, if it was valid, established all the inhable cause necessary for holding them.

"Had we admitted the evidence of the War lepartment records which the defence contended it and which the decision seems to say should have been allowed, it would have meant a long hai lasting without doubt until after the Georgia backment had become invalid through the working of the statute of limitations. When the materiam came up before Judge Brown for argument on the granting of the order of removal. I contended that the District Court was not a court of error, and that as Commissioner Shields had held the smouth of ground that probable cause was estabat as Commissioner success was estab-judge Brown had no power of review, but only decide whether under the law an order awal should be granted. East 133d street, in the rear, heard the woman's cry for help and saw her struggling with the man at the window. May and Neggesmith made a rush over the back fence and up the fire escape, while Maher went around to the front. Maher was first and grabbed Kapin just in time to save the woman. Magistrate Cornell held the painter for assault.

Bryan L. Rennelly & Co. have sold for the A Note Transaction to Be Investigated by the Brooklyn Grand Jury. erly side of Fifty-first street, commencing seventy A motion was made yesterday before Sufive feet west of Madison avenue, to Eugene Relly preme Court Justice Maddox in Brooklyn on behalf of Roger Costello to set aside the judg-ment recently obtained by default by the Nasand his brother, Thomas H. Kelly, sons of the late Eugene Relly, for about $125,000. They will erect a handsome forty-foot dwelling thereon sau National Bank against him and Richard for themselves. It is of interest to note that this Gibbons on three promissory notes for $800, $1.000 and $1.300 respectively. The bank dwelling will be directly opposite and have full view of the new Lady Chapel about to be erected officials claimed that Gibbons was the maker in the rear of the Cathedral on the Cathedral and Costello the indorser of the notes. In an grounds, between the Archbishop's house and the and Costello the indorser of the notes. In an affidavit, Costello declares that he frequently went on Gibbons's bonds in building contracts, but that his alleged signatures to the three notes and also to the answers in the three suits are forgeries. He says that when he received the notices from the bank and talked to Gibbons about them, the latter replied that it was all right, and that he would see about it.

Lawyer James D. Judge deposed that in the presence of himself and several others Gibbons admitted that he had written the signatures. Gibbons, who was in court, denied that he had ever made such an admission. After a further hearing Justice Maddox ordered an opening of the default in each case and directed the District Attorney to have the matter sitted forthwith by the Grand Jury, so that it may be determined whether forgery or perjury had been committed. There are five other alleged forged notes and the amounts involved foot up $9,000. rectory, from funds bequeathed by their mother. Ruland & Whiting have sold for Felix Campbell to Mesers. Albert and Joseph Plaut, who com-pose the wholesale drug firm of Lane & Fink, the building No. 79 John street, about 25x130. The same brokers, in conjunction with Howard G. Badgley, have sold for Judson Lawson, the property No. 120 William street, about 25x150, to the same purchasers. These two plots adjoin on the rear, making an I from William to John street. containing about 7,000 square feet. The purchasers will tear down the buildings now on this site, and will erect a modern structure covering the whole plot, to be occupied entirely by their business. The price paid is $151,000. Naturally, pealed without success from the decision against him.

Before the case came on Justice Stover said that he was a Mason and would not hear the case unless the counsel agreed that he should. Both sides so agreed. Such facts as the plaintiff relied upon for reinstatement were admitted by Elbert Crandall, counsel for the Grand Lodge. Lawyer Crandall contended that Kopp had a fair trial before the tribunals of the society, and was bound by their decision as no property rights were involved. The Court gave counsel two weeks to submit briefs. the energetic ones get the most work to do. Un-
